BUDDENBAUM

Lynn Ann Buddenbaum was born in Indianapolis, Indiana in 1948. Born in the United States, she lived in Greece before emigrating to Australia. She now lives and works in her Bush studio just minutes away from the beautiful town of Daylesford.

She continued to travel widely throughout Europe and the Middle and Far East as well as other countries in the world. These international homes, cultures and travels have been an enlightening and enriching influence on her thoughts, beliefs and artwork.

Watercolour painting is the major medium Lynn works with, after studying under award winning watercolour artists David Taylor, Herman Pekel, Alvaro Castagnet and Joseph Zbukvic.

Other mediums Lynn works with are acrylic, mixed mediums, limited Bronze Sculptures and Life Drawing.

Lynn's watercolours are predominantly impressionistic, and her acrylics are figurative leading into abstraction.

Her exhibitions are many including two Salon des Refusee Exhibitions stemming from her Archibald Prize entries.

"I feel so fortunate to be a visual artist so that I can observe and create my feelings and ideas from life around me in visual presentations. I can never just follow a particular formula; in my heart and art I am constantly exploring... which can be very exhilarating and frustrating at times".
